1. Background Information

The Netherlands has recently introduced new policy to attract wealthy immigrants/investors. The idea of this regulation is that foreign citizens with more than €1.25 million on their bank account, and who were demonstrable willing to invest this money in a project that has added-value to Dutch society, can be granted a Dutch residence permit for a fixed period of time. The antecedents of the applicants are checked, as well as the origin of their wealth. Late December 2013, Dutch Parliament has requested an overview of the different regulations in the various member states concerning the issuance of visa and/or passports to wealthy migrants willing to invest a certain amount of money in a specific member state. This ad hoc query is an update of an ad hoc query that was outlined in 2012.

Questions:

1. Do you have a special policy for wealthy immigrants?
2. If yes, how is this specific regulation juridical embedded in national law or national policy?

Disclaimer: The following responses have been provided primarily for the purpose of information exchange among EMN NCPs in the framework of the EMN. The contributing EMN NCPs have provided, to the best of their knowledge, information that is up-to-date, objective and reliable. Note, however, that the information provided does not necessarily represent the official policy of an EMN NCPs' Member State.

3. Which specific conditions and requirements were made on the applicants? What was the total amount the applicant had to invest in the member state?
4. How many non-EU citizens have applied for such residence permit and how many have received such a permit?
5. Did the successful applicants receive a visa, a residence permit or a passport (including nationality)?
6. Was the residence permit issued valid for a fixed period of time or a non-fixed period of time?
7. Have the member states conducted a background check of the potential investor? Were the criminal antecedents looked after? Did the member states check if the applicant obtained his/her wealth by money laundering or other suspicious trade?

We would very much appreciate your responses by 12 February 2014.

	Hungary	Yes	1.-3. In December 2012 the Hungarian Parliament adopted the Act CCXX of 2012 on amending Act II of 2007 on the Entry and Stay of Third-Country Nationals with the aim of enhancing investment migration. As a result any third-country national whose investments in Hungary qualify his or her entry and stay as being “in the interest of the economy at large” may receive a residence permit. For this purposes a third-country national’s stay in Hungary is considered to be “in the interest of the economy at large” in particular if the third-country national verifies that he/she or a company in which he/she holds a majority stake owns a security with a nominal value of at least EUR 250.000 and a duration of at least five years. The security is issued by an enterprise that invests exclusively in zero-coupon Hungarian government bonds issued for this particular purpose with a nominal value of EUR 250.000 and a duration of at least five years, and does so only under the conditions specified in the Ministry for National Economy Decree 4/2013 (II.19) on the specific rules for issuing the government bonds specified in the Entry and Stay of Third-Country Nationals Act. Third-country national fulfilling the conditions described above can receive a residence permit for “other” purpose. Having obtained this specific type of residence permit for 6 months, they can apply for a national long-term residence permit, which allows its holder to establish permanent residence in Hungary for an indefinite time. The application for the national long-term residence permit may be submitted at a consulate of Hungary abroad, and the issued national long-term residence permit cannot be withdrawn based on the holder’s permanent absence from Hungary.

			4. As for the residence permit for investors, between May 2013 (since it can be applied for) and December 2013 440 applications were submitted out of which 434 was granted, 1 was rejected, while the rest was still on-going at the end of 2013. The majority of these applications (429) were submitted by Chinese citizens, while 1 or 2 applications were submitted by Russian, Syrian, Egyptian, Lebanese, Iranian, American and Ukrainian citizens. As for national long-term residence permits no applications were submitted in 2013. 5.-6. Those fulfilling the special investment conditions can receive a residence permit for “other” purpose for a five-year-long definite period. Having obtained this specific type of residence permit for 6 months, they can apply for a national long-term residence permit, which allows its holder to establish permanent residence in Hungary for an indefinite time, while the permit itself is renewed every five years. Although there are no specific preferential provisions for such investors when applying for Hungarian citizenship that is they also need to spend at least 8 years in Hungary holding a long-term residence permit in order to be able to apply for Hungarian citizenship, yet the acquisition of the long-term residence status can be done under the above described preferential rules. 7. As a general obligation the threat to public policy, public security or national security is always checked. If needed, the opinion of the Constitution Protection Office and the Counter Terrorism Centre is asked in cases of application for residence permit. As for applications for national long-term residence permit, it is not only the national criminal database checked, but police clearance certificate from the country of previous residence is a compulsory annex of the application, furthermore the official opinion of the Police, the Constitution Protection Office and the Counter Terrorism Centre shall always be obtained before the decision is made.

	Norway	Yes	Norway does not have any kind of special program for granting residence permits based on wealth or promise of investments in Norway. So, no permits are issued based on savings, capital, investments, properties etc. Well situated immigrants from non EU countries must therefor fulfill the ordinary requirements for immigration and residence permits: family reunification, labour immigration or other such categories. For labour immigrants, this means that the concrete requirements in regards to education, experience and qualifications, as related to a position as well as a concrete offer of employment, with competitive salary, for a fulltime position for one employer must be fulfilled. Questions 2 -7 are therefor not relevant for Norway.
